

Meet Ms. Quinn

"It takes a village to raise the littles, and here the VILLAGE WORKS!"

- Ms. Quinn
Owner and founder of VillageWorks Montessori

Introducing the captivating Ms. Quinn, the fearless owner and founder of VillageWorks Montessori, who defied her own teenage proclamation of never becoming a teacher. Little did she know that a chance encounter with a quaint Montessori school in Knoxville, TN would change her life forever.

Once a know-it-all teenager, Quinn's journey began as a babysitter in high school, evolving into a college nanny. It was during this time that she honed her skills and developed the innovative methods she employs today. As fate would have it, she discovered an undeniable connection with children, unraveling her true passion for their growth and witnessing their awe-inspiring response to her care.

While possessing a flair for the dramatic, Quinn has left her mark on the theater world, gracing every corner of the stage with her presence. From acting and singing to costuming and stage management, she immersed herself in this vibrant world where children were never far away. With a knack for captivating young minds, Quinn found her natural gift for entertaining and educating children through the magic of acting and singing. Whether in Crossville or Knoxville, Tennessee, she embraced the stage alongside numerous talented young performers, all while caring for and teaching their budding talents. She even extended her nurturing spirit to the little ones of theater company members, ensuring their safety and well-being. Quinn's immense theatrical experience led her to instruct teenagers and young adults on basic costume alterations, offering them incredible design opportunities. Additionally, she supervised inner-city teenagers in a summer camp program focusing on theater, film, and spoken word as an assistant program coordinator for the esteemed Carpetbag Theater. She also served as a stage manager for a high school play, a collaborative project written by the students, working alongside the esteemed local Atlanta actor, Barry Mann.

In 2009, Quinn embarked on a new adventure in Atlanta, securing a position as a child actor chaperon. This opportunity allowed her to forge deep connections with families, leading her to offer private care for their cherished little ones. Word spread like wildfire about her exceptional services, and soon she was sought after throughout the city as a trusted and reliable private childcare provider. Presently, Quinn wears many hats, serving as a mother's helper, nanny, sitter, and travel nanny.

To expand her expertise, Quinn pursued a Montessori certification as an Assistants to Infancy educator in the summer of 2013. Armed with this invaluable training, she became equipped to work with children from birth to 3 years old. With over 10 years of classroom experience and an impressive 20 years of private childcare provision under her belt, Quinn has emerged as a seasoned professional. In addition to her private childcare services, she operates an in-home daycare and is currently in the midst of filming a groundbreaking parenting video course.

When she's not transforming young lives, Quinn indulges in the thrill of antiquing, cultivating breathtaking gardens, and showcasing her unwavering support for the arts as a distinguished patron.

Prepare to be enthralled by the enchanting Ms. Quinn – an embodiment of passion, dedication, and the art of nurturing young hearts.
